

Moscow will not force Lithuania to rejoin USSR

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Soviet leaders pledged Monday not to use force to crush Lithuania's newly reclaimed independence, and the Baltic republic's leaders raised the ante for talks by demanding Kremlin compensation for economic ruin and political repression.

Neither side gave any ground a day after Lithuania's legislature formally declared a restoration of the independence lost in 1940 to Stalin's army.

But they set the tone for a long dispute over Lithuania's drive to turn a political declaration into reality that must encompass questions of territory, compensation, the status of thousands of Soviet soldiers, ownership of factories and land, and control of the police and KGB.

Little had changed in Vilnius, the Lithuanian capital, the day after Monday's vote, and jubilation was tempered with recognition that hard work was ahead.

"Hope and joy must dissolve into determination to work for Lithuania," said Vytautas Landsbergis, President of Lithuania.

at the opening of the Congress he referred to the republic by its previous Soviet name — the Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republic — rather than the new name chosen Sunday, the Republic of Lithuania.

Another member of the ruling Communist Party Politburo, Yegor K. Ligachev, said the Kremlin would not use its military might to stop the Lithuanians.

"We will not use force," Ligachev declared. "We must resolve this by political means."

Ligachev is thought to be more conservative than Gorbachev, and his statement was a signal that there is little appetite for bringing a Soviet republic in line by force, much less a foreign country.

Gorbachev demanded in talks with the Communist leader of Lithuania, Algirdas Brazauskas, a week ago that the republic pay 21 billion rubles in hard currency — about $34 billion — for Soviet investment in factories and infrastructure during the past half-century. The Soviet leader also suggested Lithuania might have to hand over the Baltic port of Klaipeda, a key city that the independent republic would need to carry out foreign trade.

But Algimantas Chekuolis, a leader of the pro-independence Lithuanian political movement Sajudis, said in an interview at the Congress that the Kremlin also owes.

The Kremlin should pay 300 billion rubles — about $500 billion — to compensate for 300,000 people who were killed, imprisoned or exiled by Josef Stalin and his successors, and for the economic havoc caused by a half-century of Soviet mismanagement.

Republics assail Gorbachev's plan

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Mikhail S. Gorbachev's plan for a powerful presidency to hold the Soviet Union together ran into a wall of opposition Sunday, one day after Lithuania fractured the union by declaring its independence.

Parliamentarians from other independence-minded republics took the floor of the Congress of People's Deputies to assail the proposed presidency as far too strong for the loose federation of sovereign countries under envious as the future Soviet Union.

The fact that the U.S.S.R. is a union of sovereign states is hardly taken into account," said Givi Gumeladze, Communist Party chief of the southern republic of Georgia, after the parliament voted Friday to reject the presidency proposal and to demand immediate negotiations with Moscow on independence.

This draft does not give enough consideration to the sad traditions of this state," he said, referring to decades of dictatorship and its terrible toll of mass murder.

Lithuanians were so dismayed by Gorbachev's proposed strengthening of the presidency that they rushed to declare independence before it passed.

Tomorrow, Mr. Gorbachev will be a dictator with the right to overturn any republican parliament," said Algimantas Chekuolis, a Lithuanian who with his republic's declaration of independence now defines himself as a former member of the Soviet Congress, attending as an observer.

Gorbachev opened the session, he called the Lithuanian action "alarming" without ever mentioning the word independence. He suggested that the government study what is happening and prepare a reaction. Another member of the ruling Communist Party Politburo, Yegor K. Ligachev, said Moscow would not use force in Lithuania.

Progressive Moscow deputy Alexei Yablokov said legislators from Georgia, Moldavia, Azerbaijan, Estonia and Latvia are expected to boycott Tuesday's vote on the constitutional amendment, which could fail for lack of the required two-thirds majority. All five of those republics are possible candidates for following the Lithuanians into secession.

But throughout the day, deputies huddled with Gorbachev and each other seeking compromises.

President Barbara W. Winder to speak at Devotional today

By UNIVERSE SERVICES

Barbara W. Winder, general president of the Relief Society of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will speak at a Devotional today in the Marriott Center at 11 a.m.

President Winder is the 11th president of the Relief Society, a member of BYU's Board of Trustees and a member of the LDS Church Board of Education. She has been serving in her present position since April 1984.

She served on the Relief Society General Board for five years until 1982, when she and her husband, Richard W. Winder, were called to preside over the California San Diego Mission. She also served for nine years as the international president of Lambda Delta Sigma, an LDS Church-sponsored service organization for college students.

President Winder is a native of Midvale and has been involved in parent-teacher associations, politics and cancer crusades, as well as raising a family of four.

Rookie Coach Reid named WAC Coach of the Year

By SCOTT NIENDORF

Associated Press

BYU rookie basketball coach Roger Reid, who led the Cougars to a 21-8 record and the co-championship in the Western Athletic Conference, was named the WAC Coach of the Year by the league's head coaches and athletic directors.

Reid was the runaway winner in voting, receiving 15 of 18 possible first-place votes. Hawaii's Riley Haskins, the 1989 Coach of the Year, received one first-place vote in the voting.

Reid took the Cougars, who were ranked before the season to finish fourth in the conference, to the WAC championship with Colorado State. The Cougars had a 10-game winning streak during the year, led by WAC standouts for most of the season and earned a berth in the NCAA post-season tournament.

Reid said, "It's a nice honor. Anytime there's recognition like this, it's a great result of our players. I have to give the players a lot of credit. They were extremely coachable. They did things my way."

Reid also has to say that if I'm WAC Coach of the Year, then my two assistants (Charles Bradley and Tony Williams) are the WAC Assistant Coaches of the Year," he said.

BYU basketball coach Roger Reid (left) is interviewed by commentator Irv Brown after the Air Force game on Nov. 24, which the Cougars won 67-42.

The BYU men's alpine ski team lost the national championship but took third place last week at the National Collegiate Ski Association's National Championships in Waterville Valley, N.H.

The Cougars took sixth place in the giant slalom Thursday and first place in the slalom Saturday.

Alf Wold of BYU finished in first place in the first run of the giant slalom, said BYU Coach Ford Stevenson. However, in the second run, Wold lost a ski five gates from the finish line and was disqualified from the race. Wold had the best time in the second run before he was disqualified, Stevenson said.

"It was a real bitter disappointment to everyone," he said. BYU recovered from the mishap and took first place in the slalom competition. "We had an absolutely spectacular performance in slalom," Stevenson said.

Wood guilty of murder, other counts

By K. MICHAEL GOODMAN
Universe Staff Writer

After 10 hours of deliberation a 4th District Court jury found Lance Conway Wood guilty on all counts Saturday in the murder of Gordon Ray Church.

Wood will be sentenced Wednesday morning and could receive the death penalty.

Wood has been on trial for two weeks on charges of 1st degree murder, aggravated sexual assault and aggravated kidnapping.

In closing statements, state attorney Carvel Harward said there is overwhelming evidence Wood and Michael Anthony Archuleta, already convicted in the murder, both participated in the killing of Church.

Wood went into the mountains the night of the murder with the intention of committing a criminal act, Harward said.

He said the multiple wounds on the victim's body and multiple weapons used indicate there were two perpetrators.

Wood lied to authorities, Harward said. He said Wood lied because "the truth would have incriminated him."

Wood said he lied to avoid being charged with a murder he wasn't involved in.

Defense attorney Marcus Taylor told the jury not to rely solely on the evidence presented. "Samples of dirt don't speak, pieces of steel don't speak and pieces of clothing don't speak," Taylor said. "You have seen the crime scenes not through other witnesses but through Wood's eyes," he said.

Taylor told jurors that even if they disregard all of Wood's testimony, the hard evidence shows Wood is innocent.

White House may consider budget plan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration said Monday there's "room to talk" about a far-reaching budget plan by Democrat Rep. Dan Rostenkowski that calls for higher taxes and a one-year Social Security freeze.

However, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president's decision to consider the radical proposal by the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee doesn't mean he's abandoning his oft-stated opposition to new taxes or Social Security changes.

"We don't want to pour too much cold water on a plan we may want to swim around in for a while," Fitzwater said.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., called Rostenkowski's proposal a "good step" and said its across-the-board spending freeze "makes a great deal of sense."

"His proposal could be the wake-up call we've been waiting for," Dole said in a statement. "We'll see who answers it."

On Capitol Hill, Rostenkowski spokesman Jim Jaffe welcomed the plan's unexpectedly warm — and apparently orchestrated — reception from the administration and Dole.

"Let's do it," he said.

Still, Rostenkowski's proposal, unveiled over the weekend, has generated little support from his own party.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., called Rostenkowski's plan "a very interesting suggestion" but questioned its chances of approval unless the White House supports it.

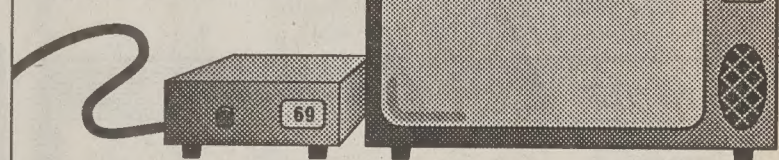

"I don't see a way we can effectively pass tax legislation raising taxes without the approval of the president," Foley told a reporter. "That remains a problem."

Rostenkowski proposed chopping the federal deficit through a combination of spending cuts; an increase in the maximum income tax rate from 28 percent to 33 percent; higher taxes on gasoline, liquor and cigarettes; and a one-year freeze in most federal spending programs including Social Security.

The goal is to reduce the annual budget deficit by 1994. It would do away with the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law and its graduated steps for balancing the budget.

"We think there's some room to talk," Fitzwater said. "It weaves a new pattern that needs to be considered at least."

Provo seeks comments on local cable service

By PAT BIRKEDAH
Senior Reporter

The TCI Cablevision contract with the city of Provo expires this year, and the city of Provo is soliciting public comment on citizens' satisfaction with cable service.

The first cable TV hearing is tonight at 7 in the Provo City Council chambers at City Hall. A second hearing will be next Tuesday at the same time and place.

Vicki Hansen, general manager of TCI Cablevision on Utah, Inc., will be at the public hearings. Hansen said she will give a short presentation about the company, with some technical information about cable TV. Some Provo residents have written to Mayor Joseph Jenkins to enter their opinions in the public record. The comments so far have been mostly negative. Of the eight who wrote in, two said they have been unable to get cable T.V. installed. The others said the rate for basic service was too high and most said the quality of service was poor.

Two people wrote and said they have been unable to get cable service, even though they live in Provo.

Douglas V. Nufer, area leader for Scandinavia in International Publications at WordPerfect, has been unable to receive cable service. He wrote to Jenkins and said, "If you want to win the hearts of the voters, hit them where it counts most — their television service."

Many have complained that other local cable stations provide better service at a lower cost. Insight is a cable company providing service to many other cities in Utah County. Insight has 37 basic cable stations, compared with 23 for TCI. Insight's cost for basic service is equal or less than TCI's Provo cost, depending on location.

Steven G. Welling, a junior from Eureka, Calif., majoring in electrical engineering, entered his comments into the public record. He said, "I am a student at BYU and feel that my opinion fairly represents many of the students living here."

He said, "At present, my apartment is cluttered by coaxial wire strung about in a fashion that allows me, from time to time, to dimly receive some of our local stations."

North says Poindexter tore up document

WASHINGTON — Former White House aide Oliver North conceded Monday that he witnessed John Poindexter "tear ... in two" a politically embarrassing presidential document that approved U.S. involvement in a shipment of Hawk missiles to Iran.

Poindexter, President Reagan's national security adviser in 1986, is accused of concealing the U.S. role in the Hawks shipment on the same day he destroyed the document. It depicts the transaction with Iran as a straight arms-for-hostages deal.

The government says Poindexter destroyed the document hours after telling Congress he had known nothing of the November 1985 Hawks shipment until more than a month after it occurred. He also is accused of obstructing Congress and making false statements in connection with his comments to lawmakers.

North testified that Poindexter discussed a "cover story" that concealed details of a U.S.-Iran arms shipment the day before he was questioned about it by lawmakers.

He reluctantly conceded that his former boss saw the false chronology prepared by the White House to answer queries about the Iran-Contra affair.

The chronology prepared in November 1986 falsely said that the U.S. government was not involved in the sale a year earlier of the Hawk missiles.

Revealing the shipment would also have led to the disclosure of the presidential document authorizing the CIA to sell the Hawks to Iran.

Utah Board of Pardons to get new director

SALT LAKE CITY — Gov. Norm Bangerter has appointed the executive director of the state Board of Pardons to sit on the board as a member.

Donald E. Blanchard, 43, replaces Paul Boyden, who resigned from the board earlier this year. He will complete Boyden's unexpired term, which ends in March 1991. Blanchard's appointment is contingent upon Senate confirmation.

Blanchard has been the director of the three-member board since September 1989, and in that capacity was involved in policy development and execution, staff supervision, and coordination with other agencies. He also served as legislative liaison.

Before that, he was regional administrator of the Department of Corrections in Provo. Blanchard is a graduate of BYU, where he obtained a master's degree in criminal justice administration in 1978.

Francine Giani, Bangerter's press secretary, said Blanchard will be replaced as executive director by Michael Sibbett, the former executive vice president of the Utah Cattlemen's Association.

Heavy fog causes chain-reaction pileup

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Dozens of cars and trucks piled up and burned in a chain-reaction collision on a downtown freeway bridge in fog so thick it cut visibility to zero. Three people were killed, authorities said.

"It was just horrible, terrible. To hear the brakes squeal, the gas tanks explode, to hear the people screaming," said Harry Suppanz, 35, of Sturgeon Bay, a passenger in a truck that crashed and burned.

At least 30 people were injured and taken to hospitals.

Police Lt. Roy Johnson described the situation as "total chaos" after the crash on the northbound lanes of the Interstate 43 bridge over the Fox River.

He said visibility was "just about down to zero" when the accident occurred shortly before 7 a.m. Authorities said 45 vehicles were involved.

By afternoon, investigators were still trying to determine the sequence of events that started the pileup, said Police Inspector Jim Taylor.

Bus shootings prompt $25,000 reward

A Greyhound bus in Connecticut was hit by sniper fire Monday, and the chairman of the strike-crippled bus line offered a $25,000 reward for information about a weekend shooting in Florida that injured eight passengers.

"We will not bend or move because of intimidation and violence," Greyhound Chairman Fred G. Currey insisted, before boarding a Greyhound bus from Jacksonville to Orlando, Fla.

No one was injured in the Connecticut shooting, which occurred on Interstate 84 shortly before 11 a.m., as a New York-to-Boston Greyhound bus headed into Hartford with 19 passengers. Passengers reported hearing a small pop that some thought was a blown tire.

Police recovered a bullet from the baggage compartment on the driver's side and were trying to determine the caliber and type of gun used, said state police spokesman Adam Berluti.

The Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions disavowed responsibility for the Florida shooting.

LDS church expects growth to skyrocket

WASHINGTON — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints expects to see unparalleled growth in the 1990s, thanks to the demise of decades-old religious repression in Eastern European countries now throwing off communist rule.

Richard G. Scott, of the Utah-based Church's Council of the Twelve Apostles, predicts the number of Latter-day Saints will double to 14 million in the coming decade — and triple to 21 million by 2005.

Further, Scott said during a weekend address to the Brigham Young University Management Society in Washington, the Church expects to see its force of full-time missionaries nearly triple to 90,000 by the year 2000.

Scott said the unprecedented growth will bring challenges as the church adjusts to new cultures and works in regions where conflict and danger exist.

He said an example of the growth is the establishment of 27 new missions by July, including Church outposts in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland.

Air Force axes plan for battlefield

By ERIN NESMITH
Universe Staff Writer

The Air Force announced Monday it has discarded its plans for an electronic battlefield in Utah.

"There is no further consideration of bringing the project to Utah because of budget constraints," said Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah.

The primary consideration in deciding not to build the battlefield was budget, but many other concerns were taken into consideration, said Len Barry, Hill Air Force Base spokesman.

Gospel sharing improved by religion class

By JOHN D. BEAMAN
Universe Staff Writer

The First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has advised that all prospective missionaries should take a class on sharing the gospel in order to better prepare them for their missions, said an assistant professor of Church History and Doctrine at BYU.

E. Dale LeBaron said, "Many students do not realize that BYU offers a sharing the gospel class in preparation for missions. Students come to BYU for a year and then go on their missions, only to later learn that BYU offers a missionary preparation class."

LeBaron said a recent General Priesthood Bulletin contains a statement from the First Presidency that reads, "Students who are considering serving a mission should be encouraged to enroll in Religion 130, Sharing the Gospel."

LeBaron said when he talks to missionaries in the Missionary Training Center, many of them ask why they weren't informed that BYU offers a Sharing the Gospel class.

LeBaron said the instructors at the MTC can tell immediately whether or not a missionary has had a Sharing the Gospel class. The missionary is better prepared and effective, he said.

Karen Clark, a sophomore from St. Louis, Mo., majoring in social science, has been a convert to the LDS Church for five months and is taking the missionary preparation class. "Every member is a missionary. Therefore, it's their duty to educate themselves to be a more effective missionary," she said.

LeBaron said along with taking Sharing the Gospel, students should take advantage of the prospective missionary conferences held each semester.

"This is an opportunity to hear from a special servant of the Lord. There is an unparalleled spirit that is found within the walls of the MTC," LeBaron said.

Elder Robert L. Backman of the Presidency of the Seventy will be the speaker Wednesday night, LeBaron said.

In conjunction with the Sharing the Gospel class, BYU offers missionary workshops that teach how to share the gospel. LeBaron said, "Instructors from these workshops are hand-picked." There are 14 instructors that teach these workshops out of 800 instructors that train missionaries at the MTC.

was completed in January but will not be released.

The Air Force determined it didn't want to spend any more time, money or effort on the project, Garn said.

Barry said the battlefield would have covered approximately 400 acres of land in Utah's western desert.

It would have been used by Air Force bases in several nearby states for operational testing of aircraft, he said.

He said since the battlefield will not be built, other facilities will probably be upgraded. Battlefields in Nevada and California are likely prospects for renovation, Barry said.

The battlefield is not in the Air Force's projected five-year budget, and as the project is envisioned, it will not be built elsewhere, Garn said. Cost increases prevent the battlefield from ever being built. "It is final and unequivocal. It will not be built," Garn said.

According to the Associated Press, the project would cost as much as $2.5 billion. However, "The highest figure we could estimate is $750 million to $1 billion," Barry said.

"I am glad rumors of the death of the electronic battlefield have not been exaggerated," said Congressman Wayne Owens, D-Utah. "It has been listed as critical in the Pentagon's budget for six months, and it was wise of the Air Force to turn over its life support systems."

Garn said he supported the battlefield in the interest of national security.

Although there have been efforts towards peace in the world, Garn said, he was advised by an Eastern German resident to view the change with a warm heart, cool head and steady hands. "It's always good to be optimistic, but we must be prudent," he said.

Volleyball team sputters; loses to UCLA, UC-Irvine

By MICHAEL J. WARD
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's volleyball team added two more losses to its season as they were downed by UCLA and UC-Irvine in straight games this weekend.

The Cougars were defeated by the UCLA Bruins 15-9, 15-10, 15-8 on Friday and then by the Irvine Anteaters, 15-11, 15-12, 15-9, on Saturday to bring their record to 3-9.

"This is kind of a down turn for us," said team spokesman, Jeff Ruffolo. "We've lost six straight matches now," he said.

Ruffolo said, "One strong point is that the match against UCLA was much closer." The Bruins beat the Cougars 15-3, 15-2, 15-10, less than a month ago in Provo.

"UCLA's offense was unstoppable," said Ruffolo. Outside hitter Mike Garcia had the lowest hitting average for the Bruins at .236. UCLA hit .531 as a team to BYU's .248 for the match.

BYU's Gunnar Lindstoel led all players with 31 kills but he also led with 10 errors for a hitting percentage of .362.

BYU led at times during the first game but middle blocker Dan Dahl, who played with an injured shoulder and a sprained ankle, was taken out with BYU leading 7-6. "They (UCLA) got the next six points and took a 12-7 lead before we could regroup," said Ruffolo. BYU caught up at 12-9 but UCLA took the next three points for the win.

In the second game, BYU took a 3-0 lead and the Bruins called timeout before tying the game at 4-4. BYU coach Carl McGown called a timeout when the Bruins went up 12-6, and then BYU scored four straight points to make it 12-10. That's as close as BYU could get as UCLA finished the game at 15-10.

BYU outside hitter Scott Waddell went in for Rod Cortez at the setting position in game two. "The setting position is showing some weakness," said Ruffolo.

The Cougars went up 3-1 in the third game behind the hitting of Dave Johnston and Lindstoel. The Bruins played their entire second team and took an 11-5 lead. With Chris Rushing serving, BYU brought the score back to 12-8 before UCLA captured the match.

"We didn't win but we held our own against these guys," said Ruffolo. "It's like the Miami Heat playing against the Los Angeles Lakers night after night."

Saturday the Cougars headed to UC-Irvine to take on the last-place Anteaters who sported an 0-10 record in conference play.

"We were a road-tired team that played against a hungry Irvine team. We played well against UCLA and figured Irvine would be easy since we overpowered them in the preseason," said Ruffolo. "We figured we'd clean up."

The score was tied six times in the first game. At 10-10, BYU started making "stupid errors" said Ruffolo. BYU managed one more point as the Anteaters took the first game.

The Cougars took a 7-2 lead in the second game. "We were overpowering in the beginning of game two," said Ruffolo. Irvine took a timeout and scored five straight points to tie the game. The game was tied at 12-12 and then Irvine scored the next three points for the win.

"It was very frustrating," said Ruffolo.

Irvine jumped out to a 10-2 lead in the third game. Ross Burningham, Scott Waddell, Chris Rushing and Colin House came off the bench for the Cougars. The Cougars brought it to 13-9 on a "spectacular" solo block, said Ruffolo.

A controversial call hurt the Cougars in the third game.

"They (Irvine) served deep and the ball was a good foot outside the line and the referee called an ace," said Ruffolo.

"The team (BYU) exploded. They couldn't believe it."

Ruffolo said the call sucked the momentum away from BYU.

Irvine then served a "legitimate" ace and won 15-9, said Ruffolo.

Men gymnasts get season best; defeat ISU

By WENDY SECRIST
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's gymnastics team achieved its highest score of the season when it beat Iowa State University Saturday in the Smith Fieldhouse.

The Cougars scored 275 and Iowa

State scored 265.

BYU Coach Mako Sakamoto said BYU was at its peak performance. "They (BYU) did better than I thought they would do," he said.

Jason Brown, top scorer for the Cougars, said he was happy with BYU's performance. "If we could do that two more times we would almost be guaranteed (to go to regionals). With another meet like that we might even go to NCAA nationals."

BYU's weakest event was the pommel horse, but the Cougars did show a lot of improvement in that event, Sakamoto said. "We scored at least three points more on pommel horse than usual."

Frank Fuchs was unable to compete and will be out for the season since he tore the ligament in his elbow at the last meet, said Sakamoto. However, Darren Elg, who is recovering from a hand injury, competed in four events Saturday and is expected to compete as an all-around competitor at the next meet, he said.

Brown said the freshmen that have been filling in for injured gymnasts are competing well. "The freshmen are really holding their own."

"As long as we keep healthy and get Darren back as an all-arounder, we should do well," Brown said.

Per Brandstrom won the all-around competition with 56.15. He also took first place on the pommel horse with 9.0 and on the parallel bars with 9.8. Brandstrom took second place on the vault, and third place in the floor exercise.

Brown took second place in all-around competition with 54.75. He placed first on the rings with 9.35. Brown scored 9.8 and took second on the high bar. On the parallel bars, Brown finished second with 9.7. He took third place on the vault.

Elg took first place on the high bar with 9.85 and second place in the floor exercise with 9.75.

Other Cougars who placed were Todd Jennings, who finished first on the vault with 9.25 and Fred Martin, who finished second on the rings with 9.35. Chris Reshelter tied for third place on the pommel horse.

The Cougars will meet Arizona State University March 24.

2 students compete in disabled skier national competition

By WENDY SECRIST
Universe Sports Writer

Two BYU students qualified this season for the National Handicap Ski Championships which will be in Stratton, Vt. through Friday. One of those students used equipment designed by a BYU mechanical engineering student.

"This competition proves disabled people to be as normal at skiing as anyone. We can compete with almost anyone speedwise," said Kim Francom, a senior majoring in recreation management from Mapleton.

Francom, whose leg was amputated three years ago, and Mark Stevens, a senior majoring in therapeutic recreation from Dillon, Colo., are two of six disabled skiers from Utah who qualified for nationals.

Francom said the Utah disabled ski team was organized by the Park City Handicap Sports Association. Francom is also the ski team captain.

Most of the skiers recruit sponsors to help pay for equipment and costs, Francom said.

Stevens, who is confined to a wheelchair, said Paul Scowgard helped design ski equipment as his senior project in mechanical engineering.

"The equipment is really expensive, so rather than digging up money to get equipment, I got together with the engineering department," Stevens said.

Stevens and Scowgard worked together to design a monoski — a chair mounted on one ski, Stevens said. He said he uses outriggers — shorter poles with miniskis on the ends — to maneuver.

Fashion show models sport leather

By CHERYL A. KORTE
Universe Staff Writer

A panel of judges, including BYU alumnus Martin Flora who is now a California leather designer, awarded fashion design student Kirsten Zepf top designer at the "Ambiance" fashion show Friday night.

Zepf, 20, from Tulsa, Okla., was one of 21 student designers from BYU featured in the show. She also received the "Most Innovative" award and tied for "Best Use of Fabric and Texture" for her high-fashion, career clothing designs for women.

The "Most Innovative" award is new this year, said Fashion Society President Laura Spendlove, 24, a senior from Los Angeles, Calif., majoring in fashion communication. The award was given for the best example of clothes that were "original, but were close enough to be used as a future trend setter."

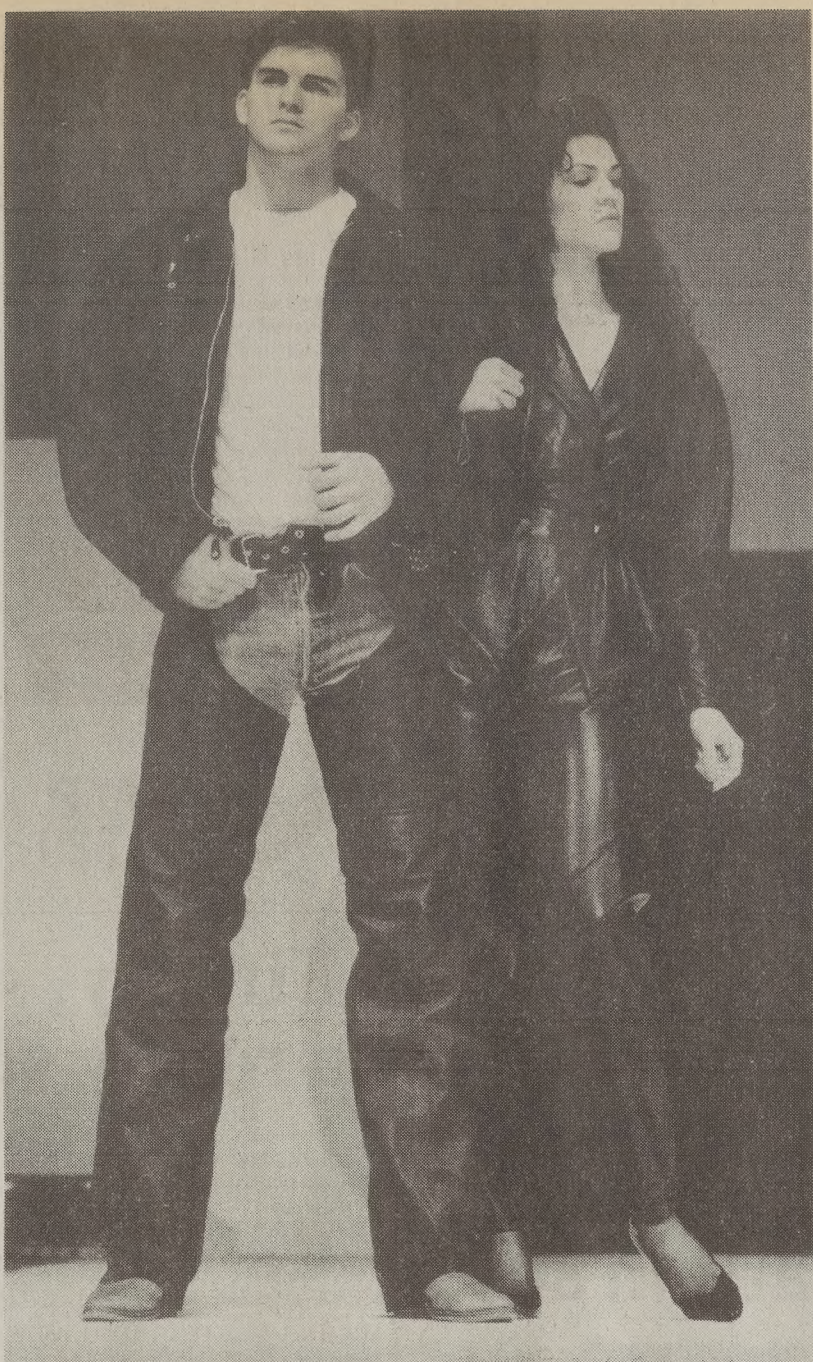

The theme of the show was "Step into the 90's, Looking Forward to the 21st Century."

Show co-chairperson, Traci Treanor, 20, a fashion design major from Littleton, Colo., said the name of the show, "Ambiance," expressed the variety of personalities in the designers' fashions.

The evening's guest designer, Martin Flora, is one of Firenze Leather's top two designers, Spendlove said. After Flora graduated from BYU in fashion design and fashion merchandising in 1985, he went to France for further training.

His creations included leather mini-dresses and jackets — and for men, leather pants worn over jeans.

Zepf and the other designers were judged by Flora, Melodee Chen, a designer from Jolene's, and Tonya Young from Nordstroms.

BYU flute choir to perform tonight

By REBECCA K. ARGYLE
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU flute choir will perform a free spring concert in the Madsen Recital Hall in the HFAC tonight at 9, said Elaine Jorgensen, the music department flute teacher.

Works from classical artists such as Mozart and Mendelssohn, as well as modern works of Zannelli will be included in the concert.

"They will perform baroque through modern works and will close with a pop-jazz number," she said.

Jorgensen said the BYU flute choir was formed last semester and consists of 16 players.

"Every major city is forming a flute choir. It's kind of the 'in' thing to do."

"There are only three or four flutes in an orchestra or ensemble and we have more flute players who want to perform," she said.

BYU trivia buffs win regionals, move to national competition

By JENNIFER JOHNSON
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's College Bowl team is on its way to the national championship tournament for the first time in five years. The team won the regional tournament in Tucson, Ariz., earlier this month.

"It's an honor for BYU to be going to the national championships," said Coach Dillon Inouye. Out of 250 college teams across the nation, only 16 are able to make it to the nationals, he said.

College Bowl competitions are similar to the television show Jeopardy, with teams competing and comparing trivia knowledge in areas of specialty.

Gladys Farmer, a former BYU College Bowl coach, said this is the first official national championship tournament BYU has qualified for.

"The last year I was coach there wasn't a national championship tournament, so the NIT (National Invitational Tournament) was the best one. BYU made it there and did well enough to be third in the nation," Farmer said.

At the University of Arizona in Tucson, BYU beat the U of A, Air Force, Utah, Weber State, Wyoming, Southern Utah State College, Utah Valley Community College and the Colorado School of Mines for the regional championship.

Inouye said 15 regional tournaments are held across the United States. "It's like the NCAA — the winner from each region competes in the national tournament."

The team will prepare for the championship tournament by "continuing to practice weekly. Also, in the beginning of April, we're going to a national invitational in the southeast. This will help because we'll be playing against many of the same teams that will be in the national championship tournament," Inouye said.

Members of BYU's College Bowl team include Don Chapman, Will Atkinson, Bryce Inouye and Brad Haymond on the "Blue Team"; Tom Anderson, Rich Davis, Jonathan Green, Darren Timothy and Chad Curtis on the "White Team."

The "Blue Team" had a 7-1 record in Tucson, and the "White Team" went 5-1.

Utah food stamp users increase greatly in 80s

By TONIA SHARP and SUZANNE CONDIE
Universe Staff Writers

Utah's recent drought is partly responsible for the state having the nation's second largest increase in the percentage of households receiving food stamps, said a spokesman for the U.S. Department of the Agriculture.

Craig Foreman of the USDA said the drought has hurt a proportion of people who work in agriculture, causing them to turn to the government for assistance.

According to a report published by the Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, Utah had a 37.5 percent increase of food stamp recipients between 1980-87, the second largest increase in the nation.

Gene Hoffing of the Utah Department of Social Services said the increases are more accurately reflected in the number of households assisted by the food stamp program.

The report said Utah food stamp recipients have increased by 45.3 percent, a figure second to an 81.1 percent increase in Wyoming.

Foreman said Utah has such a large percentage increase because it has a relatively few number of people. If the state gains several thousand people on its food stamp roster, it translates to a huge percentage increase, he said.

Clyde Nuzman of the UDSS said the increase can be attributed to the above-average family size of four people per family in Utah.

Gene Hoffing, policy and planning administrator for UDSS, said the increase in the number of food stamp recipients could also be a result of Utah's poor economy.

"I would suspect 1980 was about the time things started to look down with the national recession," Hoffing said.

He said in addition to the recession at the beginning of the decade, the closings of Geneva Steel and Kennecott Copper added to Utah's poor economy.

Increases in the number of food stamp recipients in the state could be related to the downturn in economic activity in Utah, Hoffing said. According to the Utah Foundation, Utah has the lowest per capita income in the mountain states area.

New software company will target PC market

By BROCK STOUT
Universe Staff Writer

SoftSolution, a privately-held software developer, has formed a new company to concentrate on a separate market, the company's director of marketing and communications said.

Created on Feb. 26, the new company is called PerfectSolution Corporation, Kirk Tanner said.

SoftSolution has been marketing document management systems and law office automation software since it was founded in 1979.

The company makes their software for UNIX and RISC operating systems, Tanner said.

SoftSolution makes turnkey systems for minicomputers, but PerfectSolution will concentrate on the PC market, he said.

SoftSolution, the parent company, decided it needed "to form a separate company to meet the needs of a rapidly growing document management software house," Tanner said.

They wanted to be able to focus on the PC LAN (local area network) market, he said.

Tanner said PerfectSolution 1.0 is one of about five or six products in the same market.

The main market is law firms who have already been using document management systems. But all corporations are part of the target market, he said.

Japan's commuters find seatless trains

Associated Press

TOKYO — Japanese commuters long accustomed to the crush of humanity and shoves and sneezes of fellow passengers began suffering another indignity Monday: rush hour trains without seats.

The Yamanote line, one of Tokyo's most heavily traveled routes, introduced new cars with seats that can be lowered or folded back into the wall at the touch of a button.

The seats will stay folded to ease crowding until the end of the morning rush hour at 10 a.m., creating what one Japanese TV announcer called a "freight-train feeling" aboard the cars. During rush hour, many lines in the city are at full capacity, meaning that no more trains can be squeezed into the schedule.

Finally, something to really smile about.

Have you seen the latest craze to hit dentistry? Bleaching teeth at home is the newest convenient method for getting that bright, white smile. Last year at this time, new techniques were developed to conveniently whiten teeth. Prior techniques required long dental visits under a hot light and a rubber dam, costing $50-$80 per tooth, or $1000-$1600 for the whole mouth. The results were good, but not consistent, and certainly lengthy.

With a new material called CARBAMIDE PER OXIDE, in a 10% solution (WHITE AND BRITE), anyone can participate with their dentist to brighten their teeth in a 4-5 week period—at home.

There are a myriad of products on the market, with a range of prices. The most important concerns with these products are consistency, ease of application, and length of time the material stays on the teeth before reapplication.

The best products seem to be dispensed through the dentist, who fabricates thin custom plastic trays which hold gel next to the teeth. The gel seems to be most effective for about 1 hour, then dilutes with saliva and swallowing. The gel needs to be applied 5-8 times during waking hours.

Some of the different brands do not use custom trays. In this case, effectiveness is dramatically reduced. The cheaper products are inconsistent and unpredictable due to a need for more frequent application. This also makes them inconvenient.

One of the top rated bleaching systems is WHITE AND BRITE, by OMNI. According to the December 1989 newsletter from Clinical Research Associates, WHITE AND BRITE fulfills most of the 13 characteristics deemed desirable in home-use bleach products. WHITE AND BRITE has been used all across the country with success in all age groups, and on all types of tooth discoloration. Because of its effectiveness, charges for full mouth bleaching, with this procedure, run between $400-$1500 depending upon which part of the country it's performed. The treatment lasts up to 3 years. Retreatment, if needed, is very easy. It's exciting to report that patient acceptance is very high.

Keith Clearwater, professional golfer, has recently undergone treatment with WHITE AND BRITE.

He reports:

"My teeth were yellow and I never really thought about what could be done, until my dentist recommended WHITE AND BRITE. After an easy procedure of making the trays, I started the treatment. Within 2-3 days, I noticed a difference, and after 1 week there was a significant change. I noticed because I only did the top teeth at first. I have now done both arches and people mention to me, unsolicited, how white my teeth look. The $400 for the treatment is a steal compared to some of the alternatives. It is simple to use and I would recommend it to anybody."

WHITE AND BRITE seems to be the best thing to come along since sliced bread--bleached white flour, of course.

Now, brighten your smile for summer!
